

marcela dorantes

Artist - in - Residence

Yellow Barn Stone Tower

April 2011

Through my painting process during my residency I will re-examine nature, wildlife, domestic animals and humans. In my work, I seek to develop expressive meaning from the presence of wildlife, the experience of expansiveness, intimacy, and remoteness through a narrative use of space, shape, repetition, and color. My identity as an artist has been shaped by the Yellow Barn. I will share with visitors the Yellow Barn spirit of creative richness, nurturing, art community, and the dedication to art.

Art is my exclamation of gratitude to the world; it transcends my experience and admiration of all life, movement, energy, and the versatility of color to create expansion of my soul and gratitude for life.

Please join me and observe a real artist at work.

April 1-30, Studio hours (Also by Appointment)

Wednesday-Friday, 10:00 am - 5:00 pm

Saturday-Sunday, 12 pm - 6:00 pm

Artist Lectures: Free and Open to the Public

April 17th, 3:00-4:00pm

Demonstration, "My Expressive Surrealist Painting"

April 23rd, 3:00-4:00pm

Artist Talk- The artist's journey "Musings of an artist at the shores of the Potomac River to the rugged desert in Sedona, Arizona and beyond.."

April 30, 3:00-4:00pm

Demonstration- Elk Skin Hide Painting with Native Pigments and Drum Making April 30, 2011 at 3:00 pm.

Yellow Barn Stone Tower 7300 MacArthur Blvd, Glen Echo, MD

www.marceladorantes.com